Mobilize Madison to target public safety

Steering Committee to review public safety policies, procedures

BY MARK CAMPBELL

Mayor Bob Courtney thinks Madison is one of the safest communities in Indiana — and has one of the best police departments as well — but that doesn't mean the community wouldn't benefit from an across-the-board review of public safety policies and procedures, especially during a time when law enforcement is facing more scrutiny than ever in communities across the nation.

On Tuesday Courtney launched a new community safety initiative — a blanket study of law enforcement and public safety throughout the city similar to his previous initiatives focusing on the parks system and economic development and historic preservation — that over the next few months will scrutinize all aspects of services to identify not so much what is wrong, but what can be done better.

Called Mobilize Madison, the proposal will be an expansion of some of the changes already being implemented, which have included restructuring salaries to better attract and retain police officers, revitalization of blighted neighborhoods to force out crime, interlocal agreements with Jefferson County to better address the community's drug problems and the implementation of body cams for all officers to provide transparency.

Madison Police Chief John Wallace fields questions during a presentation to City Council on Tuesday on Mayor Bob Courtney's Mobilize Madison community safety initiative.

In a recurring theme during Courtney's first six months of his first term in office, the city will look at policies, procedures and past results and compile data that can then be used to decide strategies for improvement.

Madison Police Chief John Wallace said he was looking forward to the process because it will help his department further review some of the issues he's been evaluating since taking over as chief in February. Wallace said Madison Police, unlike departments in some U.S. communities, receives strong support from its community. Undergoing a thorough review of policies and procedures and then implementing any changes found necessary should help foster an even better relationship, he said.

To expedite and diversify the process, Courtney proposed creating a Policy and Procedures Steering Committee to be chaired by Wallace but also include a member of the police department, the mayor's office, the city's Commission on Human Relations, City Council and a citizen member. He anticipates the process taking about four months to complete at which time policies and procedures can be updated and implemented. The process can then be an ongoing effort as needed.

Courtney said areas to be scrutinized will cover a wide range, from how suspects are treated in custody to the way evidence is processed and controlled during investigations. The panel will look at the use of force — both lethal and non-lethal — and review policies and procedures for roadblocks, emergency driving and the pursuit of suspects who refuse to stop.

Both Courtney and Wallace agreed that a review of the department's pursuit policy is especially timely in the wake of last January's pursuit that ended in the suspect crashing his vehicle and the deaths of two teenage passengers near Madison. The incident took place prior to Wallace's hiring as chief, but both Courtney and Wallace said internal reviews of the incident indicate that the officers all performed properly. Even so, they said the policy should still be reviewed along with many other scenarios officers are likely to face at some point on the job.

"Overall, the review of our current policies and procedures were fine but there were several areas we can improve upon and now is the time to accelerate progress and compliment the results that Chief John Wallace has already accomplished," Courtney said. "We believe forming a more diverse group will benefit the community overall. Improved policies will improve training."

Courtney said by proactively studying policies and procedures provides transparency to citizens and both the public and police can better understand how situations are likely to be handled and what support the city can and will provide.

Part of the process has already begun with some of the changes already implemented by the police department. Two new patrolmen are being hired to expand the force, an officer will be assigned to full-time duties as evidence clerk and another officer has been promoted to detective to give the department enough lead investigators to prevent detectives from being overworked and burned out, and lead to more cases getting solved and more quickly. That's already helped the department clear some of its outstanding caseload and refocus on crime prevention and investigation.

"We have closed out over 2,000 stale cases," Courtney noted. "We are hiring a full-time evidence clerk so our detectives can spend their time investigating cases. It's part of a broader strategy to make Madison the safest community in the state of Indiana.

"You wouldn't believe all that Chief Wallace has accomplished. He's been here just four months but there's so much that he's accomplished already," he added, noting that the purpose of Mobilize Madison is to allow police to do even more.

Developer to build on Memorial Gardens Pet Cemetery

Pets can be relocated to new section

BY COLLIN OVERTON

Those who have pets buried at Memorial Gardens located on U.S. 421 north of Madison will soon need to relocate them soon because a local developer plans to build on the site.

The 2.15-acre site, located just a stone's throw from Grandview Memorial Gardens, was purchased in a sheriff's auction for $9,000 in 2012 by developer Calvin Daugherty, according to the county's GIS system. For years the parcel has been home to a pet cemetery, but Daugherty plans to build a house on the property, which he announced on Facebook last year.

Locals pet owners and others reacted to the development on Monday after Jefferson County resident Cyndi Glesing White posted a picture of several caskets dug up from their plots next to a bulldozer at the pet cemetery.

Cable board seeks to refocus role as watchdog

BY MARK CAMPBELL

Citing recent cable outages and service inconsistencies by the two cable television franchise holders in Madison, the city's Public Video Service Board agreed Monday to refocus its efforts as public watchdog on the quality of service local residents are getting for their entertainment dollar.

The Video Service Board, at its creation decades ago when it was called the Cable Advisory Board, was tasked with making sure cable television franchise holders provided reliable service and suitable programming for local customers as part of the agreement allowing the businesses to operate in Madison and Jefferson County like a public utility.

Over the years, cable providers have changed hands — companies have been bought and sold — and technology has changed with more and more services automated and fewer opportunities for customers to address their concerns to an actual company representative. Along the way, there has been somewhat of a disconnect between the customers and the services they pay for as well as the board and the providers they regulate.

The board agreed on Monday that moving forward that needs to change. More frequent and longer outages have become an

7 patients, 1 employee test positive for coronavirus at Carroll facility

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Seven residents and one employee of a long-term care facility in Carroll County have tested positive for the COVID-17 coronavirus.

The influx of cases at the facility, which representatives of the Three Rivers District Health Department did not identify, mark one-third of the county's coronavirus cases overall since the beginning of the pandemic.

The eight news cases also give Carroll 24 total cases and the county's most active cases at any one time during the pandemic at 14. So far 10 residents of Carroll have recovered from the virus and there have been no deaths reported.

Nearby Gallatin County is the hardest-hit county in the Three Rivers region with 61 total cases — up about 18 from a week earlier.

Indiana's Music City is back on track

Hard to believe it was all the way back in mid-March when the pandemic hit and live music ground to a halt here in Madison. I'll never forget I was at the Taproom on March 12 and someone said, "they just canceled the NCAA basketball tournament."

Uh-oh, things were getting serious.

But things are starting to open back up, and we've all decided how we want to act and live and keep ourselves safe. Some of us will choose to go back indoors to the bars and restaurants. And some of us will be more comfortable on the patios and outdoor dining areas. Fortunately we have all those options in Madison right now.

Both the Off-Broadway Taproom and the Red Bicycle Hall, two of the pillars of the live music scene in Madison, are opening back up in the coming weeks. The Red Bike actually has a couple of reduced capacity shows in the next few weeks while the Taproom is waiting until July 4th when they should be allowed to open at full capacity.

"We're coming back with our full music schedule," says Ryan Shaw, manager at the Taproom. "Tuesday open mic night, Thursday acoustic night, and then various solo and band acts on Friday, Saturday and Sunday."

With this beautiful early summer weather we've been having, perhaps you'd prefer an outdoor venue to enjoy some live music? We have a wealth of great choices now.

Mad Paddle Brewery has upgraded its patio with sunshades and flower planters, and will be having music every Saturday. "We will also have live music on Thursdays and we're thinking about adding Fridays," says Jerry Wade, Mad Paddle owner.

Over at Thomas Family Winery, owner Steve Thomas is bringing back Saturday live music on his wonderful outdoor porch and

Homemade 'gun' explodes, killing Scottsburg man

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

A Scott County man died Saturday after a homemade gun he had assembled exploded when he fired the weapon.

Detectives from the Indiana State Police post in Sellersburg were called to investigate the incident in Scottsburg after the man was rushed to a local hospital with a suspicious injury that resulted in his death.

Trooper Jon Cain responded to Scott County Memorial Hospital to assist deputies after learning that a man had been dropped off at the emergency room with a possible gunshot or stab wound to the neck at about 11:40 a.m. on Saturday.

The injured man, later identified as Scott M. Powers, 39, Clarksville, was flown to University Hospital in Louisville, where he was pronounced dead a short time later.

A preliminary investigation by ISP Detective Matt Busick and Crime Scene Investigator Phil D'Angelo, determined that Powers was with a friend at the Jackson Heights Trailer Park in Scottsburg when he unveiled and attempted to shoot a homemade firearm in a wooded area next to the trailer park. The weapon, sometimes referred to as a "slam-fire", was designed to fire a 12-gauge shotgun shell. Upon firing the weapon, the barrel exploded, injuring Powers in the neck. He managed to run to his car and was driven to the emergency room by his friend, who also attempted to render aid.

An autopsy performed by the Kentucky Medical Examiner on Monday morning ruled the death "accidental". At this time, investigators believe Powers made the weapon himself. This case is still under investigation pending toxicology reports.

Biker leads ISP on 58-mile chase

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

A Corydon man led Indiana State Police, along with several sheriffs deputies, on a 58-mile pursuit through Harrison and Floyd counties early Saturday morning before the chase ended in a Harrison County field with the man arrested on multiple charges including a felony.

Mark Christopher Kirby

The pursuit began about 2:40 a.m. Saturday as Trooper Nathaniel Newton, who was patrolling Highway 337 near Quarry Road in Harrison County, came up on a motorcycle in front of him with no taillights, no license plate light and no license plate. When Newton tried to pull the bike over, the driver did not stop and then led Newton and other joining officers on a nearly hour-long chase.

The chase eventually entered Floyd County on S.R. 64 before returning to Harrison County along S.R. 62. The driver committed numerous traffic violations throughout the chase, including running stop signs, traveling in the opposite lane of the highway and speeding. The pursuit ended near Trestle Road in Harrison County when the driver drove his bike off into a field and attempted to flee on foot. Harrison County Deputies gave chase on foot and were able to apprehend the driver and take him into custody.

The driver, identified as Mark Christopher Kirby, 22, of Corydon, Indiana, was lodged in the Harrison County Jail on multiple charges including resisting law enforcement with a Vehicle, a Level 6 felony; resisting law enforcement, driving while suspended (prior) and possession of a handgun without a license, all Class A misdemeanors; and reckless driving, a Class C misdemeanor.

Trimble County's shrinking budget given second reading

BY COLLIN OVERTON

Trimble County Fiscal Court saw its budget for 2020-2021 shrink by about $163,000 between the first and second reading at a regular meeting on Monday.

The county and Kentucky Department of Local Governments came up with several budget changes between the first reading on April 20 and second reading on Monday, reflecting both routine changes and an expected drop in revenue due to COVID-19 losses. Next year's budget totals $3,207,405 in both revenue and appropriations and no changes were made to tax rates from the previous year, Judge Executive Todd Pollock said.

Cuts across the board were proposed by magistrates when they held the first reading in April.

Trimble County made the following changes between the first and second reading: the fund for offsite waste was reduced from $725,000 to $625,000, state reimbursements were decreased from $4,000 to zero and surplus funds from the prior year were decreased from $774,420 to $686,081.

Employee insurance was reduced from $619,139 to $455,802, while county road aid decreased from $726,298 to $559,233. Surplus funds from prior years increased from $320,000 to $367,565.

Interim Road Supervisor Barry Sherrell saw his salary increased from $44,000 to $44,100, while road worker salaries decreased from a combined $322,000 to $200,000. Overtime pay, meanwhile, decreased from $21,000 to $18,000, the county match for social security decreased from $28,000 to $21,000 and the county match for retirement increased from $54,000 to $66,000.

County Clerk Tina Browning also gave an update on the upcoming June 23 primary election and said early voting at the courthouse has seen 160 ballots cast so far. The county was able to secure two polling places — at the Milton and Bedford Elementary Schools — for election day and 10 people have been selected to man the voting machines and make sure voters stay at a social distance of six feet, she said.

Last Saturday's early voting drew 21 people and she hopes more will exercise that option this Saturday, the last weekend residents can vote early. Early voting at the courthouse ends Monday, June 22 at 4:30 p.m.

While COVID-19 has drastically affected the current election cycle, it's also affected how the county is holding court. Sheriff Charlie Kelton said courts reopened this week on a restricted basis, with members of the public still not allowed normal entry.

Kelton also requested Fiscal Court pay for six new radios needed by the Trimble County Sheriff's Department at a cost of $440.66 each with a $1,900 rebate. Pollock and magistrates granted the request and said the money will come from Trimble's CARES Act appropriation.

Magistrates also discussed plans for a sand volleyball court at the Trimble County Park and made a motion to purchase nets at a cost of no more than $250. Other components such as the sand and construction will be discussed at a future meeting.

MPD arrests juveniles in Chillbilly burglary

Photos shared on Facebook allow suspects to be quickly identified

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Madison Police Department arrested three juveniles suspected of breaking into the Chillbilly Treats ice cream shop and cutting loose boats docked on the Ohio River Tuesday, according to a release.

Officers began investigating a burglary and stolen merchandise at Chillbilly on Vaughn Drive June 9, along with reports of criminal mischief at the Skunk Hollow and Lighthouse boat docks. According to MPD, ropes securing boats to the docks were cut, allowing the boats to drift down the river.

MPD investigated a second burglary at the Chillbilly last Sunday. The owners of the store posted security footage to the Chillbilly Facebook page of a juvenile wearing a white hoodie, red pants and a hat climbing through the front window and rummaging through cabinets around 1 a.m. Monday.

"I knew my pineapple whip was good but not enough to commit a felony," the caption read.

That day, MPD obtained photos of the suspects and posted them to its Facebook page. The photos were shared more than 20,000 times, allowing the suspects to be quickly identified.

Lieutenant Dan Slygh located three of the juveniles and arrested them on charges of burglary and criminal mischief. Patrolman Chad Wehner assisted.

The boats, which were discovered the following morning, were recovered downriver in the area of Hanover Beach and Wise's Landing.

Hanover OKs buying used patrol cars from Scottsburg

BY COLLIN OVERTON

Hanover Town Council approved an interlocal agreement to purchase used police cars from the Scottsburg Police Department at its regular meeting on Tuesday.

Council member Debby Kroger read the agreement, which sets aside $15,000 to purchase two used patrol vehicles from Scottsburg. The council had agreed to the purchase at an earlier meeting, she said.

Council members also set fees at $25 per truckload for the town's public dumpster and discussed hiring a custodian to clean Town Hall up to three hours per week. After some discussion over what to pay for the service, council members elected to advertise the position at $50 a week.

Hanover Town Council will meet again July 7 at 6 p.m.

Gallatin, which also saw an outbreak at a long-term care facility earlier, currently has 15 active cases and leads the health district in COVID deaths with seven.

Meanwhile, Trimble County has five confirmed cases of the coronavirus with no deaths.

Across the Ohio River, the Indiana State Department of Health is reporting 54 total cases in Jefferson County with one death and 22 total cases in Switzerland County with no deaths.

Overall, 264 new cases were diagnosed in Indiana, bringing the state's total to 41,013 with 2,289 deaths including 24 in the past day. A total of 12,829 cases have been diagnosed in Kentucky with 512 deaths.

Intensive care unit and ventilator capacity remains steady in Indiana with more than 38% of ICU beds and more than 81% of ventilators currently available.

To date, 371,182 Hoosiers and 324,433 residents of Kentucky have been tested for the virus.

issue with both local providers and when outages occur, city officials have as much trouble finding answers as do the frustrated customers.

Aaron Paul Wood, station manager for Madison TV 15, the city's public access channel, noted he currently does not have a direct phone number of a person to call in the event of an outage — a situation that is frustrating when the public access channel is knocked off the air for hours at a time — and his calls are routed through the same automated system as regular customers.

Board member Jan Vethrus said there was a time when the video service board monitored the local cable companies much more closely but over the years the board's role has evolved into more of an advisory board to the public access channel. She'd like to see that change in an effort to force the cable providers to live up to their contracts and provide better services in return for the city allowing them to do business in Madison.

"Somebody signed a contract allowing them to come into the city and they're not living up to that contract," Vethrus said. "We're supposed to be managing what cable companies do in the county and we've just been managing you," she told Wood. "We need to assert our authority ... the board has strayed from its responsibility as cable overseer."

Board member Larry Henry noted that Spectrum no longer staffs an office in Madison and customers returning rental equipment are forced to drive to the nearest office in Jeffersonville to return rental equipment that they are charged for until it is returned.

"It's ridiculous. They come to your house to put it in so they should come to your house to pick it up or have a place locally for drop off," Henry said.

Henry also reminded the board that Spectrum switched the location of the city's public access station from Channel 15 to Channel 377 without consulting the city, a move that now has the public access programming on a channel that is contradictory to its name.

Although only the two companies currently hold franchises in Madison and pay a percentage of their fees as a local tax on their service, there are other companies reportedly interested in Madison. That could provide more leverage for the city to be more demanding.

"We need to be much more assertive with these companies to manage them — especially if there are some other companies interested in coming in," Vethrus said.

Although it was not brought up in Monday's discussion, one of the local companies — Spectrum — currently owes to the city several thousands of dollars in back fees from service taxes collected from customers but not forwarded to the city. So far the city has appealed to the company to pay what is owed to avoid litigation or a suspension of the franchise agreement.

Mathis to become 17th member of Colts' Ring of Honor

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indianapolis Colts will add career sacks leader Robert Mathis to their Ring of Honor this year.

The team announced Monday the induction ceremony will take place Nov. 22 when the Colts host the Green Bay Packers.

Mathis played his entire 14-season NFL career in Indianapolis and was best known for his chop to jar balls loose from quarterbacks. He finished his career with a franchise-record 123 sacks, 17th all-time, and a league-record 47 strip sacks. He was the inaugural Deacon Jones Award winner in 2013 and was named an All-Pro that season after leading the NFL with 19 ½ sacks.

"From a fifth-round pick from a small college to one of the most effective and feared defensive players in the NFL, Robert Mathis was a centerpiece of the historic Colts teams of the last two decades," Colts owner Jim Irsay said in a statement. "He was undersized and underrated, but he made up for it with a motor that wouldn't quit and a flawless technique that outmatched the most talented lineman in the league. And to watch him strip-sack the quarterback — which he did better and more than anyone in NFL history — was a thing of beauty."

Mathis played most of his career opposite longtime friend Dwight Freeney, the most recent Ring of Honor inductee, and was selected to six Pro Bowls.

He won two AFC titles, earned one Super Bowl ring and was selected the team's 2011 Ed Block Courage Award.

Mathis, who played his college ball at Alabama A&M, retired following the 2016 season but returned to the Colts as a consultant and assistant coach.

He will be the 17th inductee, joining six former teammates, Hall of Fame coach Tony Dungy and president/general manager Bill Polian, who traded up to get Mathis in the 2003 draft.

Earnhardt Jr. headlines NASCAR's 2021 Hall of Fame class

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dale Earnhardt Jr. spent his whole life chasing meaningful rewards.

He waited longingly for a pat on the back from his famous father, worked diligently to generate compliments from crew members and other drivers and reveled in the roar of his fans — those he inherited from his father and the new ones he brought along for the ride.

NASCAR's longtime fan favorite received the sport's biggest honor Tuesday, being selected to join his father in the series' Hall of Fame. Earnhardt will be inducted in Charlotte, North Carolina, along with the late Mike Stefanik and 87-year-old Red Farmer, who is planning to race on Talladega's dirt track this weekend. Ralph Seagraves was named the Landmark Award winner for his contributions to the sport.

Dale Earnhardt Jr.

Despite never winning a series championship, Earnhardt still received 76% of the votes cast on the modern era ballot.

"Just talking about it, it's really emotional because I feed off affirmation," he said wistfully. "It's such a great feeling to know people think I made an impact. I know what my numbers are and I feel like I was chosen because of that but also for the impact I made off the track, being an ambassador for the sport."

Being an Earnhardt name certainly comes with its advantages.

Junior's grandfather, Ralph, went into the International Motorsports Hall of Fame in 1997 and was named one of the NASCAR's 50 Greatest Drivers in 1998. Junior's father, The Intimidator, also made the list and even before finishing his career with 76 wins and a record-tying seven Cup titles.

The team-owning father even gave Dale Jr. his first big break, a full-time ride in the Busch Series in 1998. It didn't take long for Junior to prove he was a natural — on and off the track.

He won Busch championships in each of his first two seasons, then two races as a rookie Cup driver in 2000.

But when the elder Earnhardt was killed during the 2001 Daytona 500, Junior suddenly found himself in a place he never imagined.

"I knew when dad died I was going to assume most if not all of his fan base and I feel like I took care of that," he said. "I didn't squander that, I didn't ruin that and I also introduced myself to a lot of people who never heard of Dale Earnhardt."

Suddenly, the brash 26-year-old Earnhardt emerged as the face of the sport and started adding his own chapter to the family legacy. He won 26 races before retiring as a full-time Cup driver following the 2017 season, including two Daytona 500s and the 2001 Pepsi 400, the first Cup race held at Daytona after his father's death.

Still, fans watched to see if he could replicate the fearless style that made his father so popular. Junior never tried to compete with that image.

"There was a point in my career where i started to think I'm not going to win seven championships; I might not even one. I'm not going to win 100 races; I might not even win 40," he said. "There were a lot of people that wanted me to be as successful as he was and be as aggressive as he was and spin people out or whatever. So I started to think about what I could do outside of that and what else I could do to help the sport."

Junior introduced stock-car racing to a new fans through different news outlets, social media and podcasts.

The result: Fifteen consecutive Most Popular Driver awards.

While Earnhardt will be the headliner at the induction ceremony, he's impressed by his new classmates, too.

Stefanik won seven titles in NASCAR's modified series and two more in the Busch North series. The nine total victories is tied for second in series history with Richie Evans and Stefanik was named the second greatest driver in modified history in 2003.

The 61-year-old Stefanik, who died from injuries sustained in a plane crash in Connecticut last September, edged out Ricky Rudd for the second spot on the ballot with 49% of the vote.

"Phenomenal when you think about what he did. Nine championships," Kyle Petty said during NBCSN's announcement show. "Phenomenal record, phenomenal amount of wins."

Farmer, one of the three original "Alabama Gang" members with brothers Bobby and Donnie Allison, beat out Hershel McGriff by earning 71% of the vote on the pioneer ballot.

The 87-year-old Farmer won four Late Model Sportsmen season titles, an estimated 700 to 900 races and also was a member of NASCAR's 50 Greatest Drivers. He also is a member of the International Motorsports Hall of Fame in 2004 and this week with the big series returning to Talladega, he's scrambling to put together a car for two nights of racing on the dirt track across the street.

"I had a little fender-bender in a 40-lapper last weekend," he said. "They had a three or four-car pile up right in front of me and I slid into it and messed up the nose pretty good. So I'm getting my backup car ready."

Seagraves helped find new sponsors, including former title sponsor Winston, as well as refurbishing tracks.

RC Boats ready to hit the water on June 27

The Madison Regatta for H1 Unlimited Hydroplanes may have been canceled for this year, but the Dennis Holt Memorial Race for radio-controlled boats will go on as scheduled.

The annual race is scheduled for Saturday, June 27, at Krueger Lake on the former Jefferson Proving Grounds from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. According to Kevin Lichlyter with the local PropWalkers RC Club, more than 65 boats have registered for the event over several different classes. Lichlyter said that the group is currently working on food vendors and admission will be free.

The RC boats resemble their larger cousins in a lot of ways, depending upon their size and type of motor. Like other divisions of boat racing, the RC boats will run several heats with a winner-take-all final.

Hanover College to run Triple Crown Series

The Hanover College Triple Crown Cross Country Racing Series will be contested over three Wednesdays in July with a few adjustments to allow the race to comply with COVID-19 guidelines.

Along with social distancing being encouraged both before and after the race, water will not be provided at the finish so runners will need to bring their own drinks. Time results will be available after the race by place only; no name cards will be recorded. Pre-registration is also strongly encouraged. Those paying on the day of the event will need to pay the exact amount only. No change will be made.

The series kicks off on Wednesday, July 15 with the 3,000-meter race and will increase to 4,000 meters on Wednesday, July 22 and finally the 5,000-meter finale on Wednesday, July 29. Cost is $5 per race, or $4 per event if pre-registered. Each race begins at 7 p.m. and will be run on Hanover College's championship cross country course. Races are open to all ages and abilities.

Those interested can contact Brady Wells at wellsb @hanover.edu for an entry form.

Coleman 7th in golf event

Bedford's Gideon Coleman placed seventh in the Bluegrass Golf Tour event at the Henry County Country Club on Friday in New Castle, Kentucky.

Coleman, a student at Providence Academy who lives in Bedford, shot a 10-over 82 to finish seventh out of the 12-man field in the Boys 15-18 division.

Evan Beery of LaGrange won the event with a one-over 73. Coleman's younger brother Amos Coleman was the only golfer in the 13-18 division and shot a 23-over 59.

On Monday, Coleman shot a 92 to place 12th in the BGT event at the Shelbyville Country Club. Andreas Olsen of Louisville won the event with a six-over 78. Amos Coleman was the only golfer in the boys 13-18 division and shot a 22-over 58.

NBA lays out its vision for Disney restart to teams, players

BY TIM REYNOLDS
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

Here's some of what awaits NBA players going to Disney next month: game rooms, golf course access, cabanas with misters to combat the heat, fishing areas, bowling, backstage tours and salon services.

It only sounds like vacation.

The NBA described very specific plans to players and teams for the restart on Tuesday, doing so in a memo and handbook both obtained by The Associated Press.

With safety being of the foremost importance during the coronavirus pandemic, players were told they will be tested regularly — but not with the deep nasal swabs — and must adhere to strict physical distancing and mask-wearing policies.

The league and the National Basketball Players Association have been working on the terms of how the restart will work for weeks, all while constantly seeking advice from medical experts including Dr. Anthony Fauci, perhaps the best-known physician in the country when it comes to the battle against COVID-19.

Later Tuesday, the NBA released its medical protocols to teams, a 108-page file. Among the highlights: players must shower in their individual hotel rooms instead of the game or practice arenas, be part of a contact tracing program, and that it is "recommended that coaches wear face coverings pre- or post-game where feasible."

"The occurrence of a small or otherwise expected number of COVID-19 cases will not require a decision to suspend or cancel the resumption of the 2019-20 season," the NBA wrote.

Most teams will arrive in Florida on July 7, 8 or 9.

Trimble County Apple Festival postponed by COVID-19

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

The Trimble County Apple Festival Committee met on Tuesday, June 17, via Zoom due to the COVID-19 pandemic and decided unanimously to postpone this year's festival until 2021.

According to organizers, the decision was based on many factors but first and foremost was that many of the committee members and people responsible for organizing the event have factors that would put them at risk under the current virus emergency. Additionally, guidelines set by the CDC and Kentucky would have made it difficult to organize and safely stage and event of that size.

Currently, Kentucky has not authorized gatherings of more than 50 people. Although, Trimble County is fortunate to have been mildly impacted by COVID-19 — there have been only five cases in the county — the committee wants to keep the community safe.

According to the CDC, the more people an individual interacts with at a gathering and the longer that interaction lasts, the higher the potential risk of becoming infected and then spreading the disease. Large in-person gatherings — the Apple Festival routinely draws 15,000 over two days with most of those from out of county — would make it difficult to observe social distancing of at least 6 feet apart.

This year's festival, slated for Sept. 12-13, was to be the group's 30th anniversary. Organizers will now turn their attention to holding the event in September 2021.

Watch Those Comparisons

Make sure your comparisons are apples to apples

By Stephen Dybwad

Which is better, a hammer or a screwdriver? It depends on what you are trying to accomplish, doesn't it? Both of them can be wonderful, or both of them can be useless. And even though you are comparing similar things (tools), it all depends on the task at hand, doesn't it?

Now, which is better, a hammer or a banana? What? How do you compare a hammer and a banana? Well, you really can't, can you? They are completely dissimilar. Although, even with their dissimilarities, which of these is best would still be determined by current needs, like, am I hungry? or do I need to connect some 2 x 4's?

So, which is better, stocks or annuities? Is this a comparison of similar things or dissimilar things? The answer is, both. Stocks and annuities are similar because they are both financial vehicles, but they are wildly dissimilar because one doesn't guarantee ANY of your money, and the other guarantees ALL your money. Stocks compare better to mutual funds, commodities, and other equities. Annuities compare better to CD's, money markets, and other guaranteed investments.

Whether or not the comparison of stocks to annuities is valid, the comparisons will always be made, and you have to know how to make that determination. It's relatively simple, and always comes down to this: What am I trying to accomplish? If you need to accumulate substantial sums of money in a relatively short time period and don't mind the risk of losing your investments, then stocks might be appropriate for you. If you need to protect your money and guarantee it will last for the rest of your life, annuities may be suitable for you.

The truth is this: every financial product is pretty good if it is used for what it was designed to do. That very same product is horrible if it is used to try to accomplish something it was never designed to do. Beware of the advisor who cannot acknowledge the benefits of every financial product – even the ones he or she doesn't sell. Also, beware of the advisor who is more interested in telling you how great his or her investment is than in finding out what you are trying to accomplish.

Asking the right questions, and making the proper comparisons, is often the first step in making sure you get the best information for your situation. I will show you how to stop asking common questions and start asking great questions in my upcoming articles.

OBITUARY

Ronald Higham

Ronald Lee Higham, 72, of Madison, Indiana, died Friday, June 12, 2020, at his home in Madison.

He was born July 19, 1947, in Milan, Indiana, to Ralph L. Higham and Laura Mae Bachmann Higham Melson. He graduated from Aurora High School and was a member of the Sparta Baptist Church. He was inducted into the U.S. Army on Aug. 2, 1967, in Lawrenceburg, Indiana, during the Vietnam War. He served in HQ 5/42 Artillery Unit and was honorably discharged on April 4, 1969, at Oakland, California, receiving the National Defense Service Medal, the Vietnam Service Medal, the Vietnam Campaign Medal and the Army Commendation Medal.

He married Sharon Sue Sebree in 1969 and they had a daughter and three sons. He worked for many years as a heavy equipment operator for Bennett Construction in Aurora. He also lived in South Carolina for several years and was married to Norma Higham and they had a son. He had lived in Madison the past 10 years and worked for Will's Auto Care. He enjoyed fishing, working puzzles, camping and tinkering on cars.

Survivors include his sons, Richard Lee "Ricky" Higham of Hanover, Indiana, William "Billy" Carroll of Bright, Indiana, Andrew "Andy" Brown of Harrison, Indiana and Randy Higham of Aynor, South Carolina; his daughter, Michelle Lynn Geisler of Madison; a brother, Melvin Higham of Rising Sun, Indiana; and 12 grandchildren, two great grandchildren, an aunt and several nieces, nephews and other relatives.

He was preceded in death by his parents, his first wife, Sharon Sue Sebree Higham, in 2005; his last wife, Norma Higham; and a brother, Leroy Higham.

Funeral services will be at 11 a.m. Thursday, June 18, at the Indiana Veterans Memorial Cemetery Chapel in Madison. Interment will follow in the Indiana Veterans Memorial Cemetery there. Friends may visit from 10 a.m. until time of services Thursday at the Chapel. A final salute and military honors will be conducted by the Major Samuel Woodfill Post No. 9 of the American Legion.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Ronald Higham Remembrance Fund. Cards are available at the Morgan & Nay Funeral Centres of Madison and Hanover. Online condolences, www.morgan-nay.com.

Raising awareness of elder abuse

DAVID SUTTER

World Elder Abuse Awareness Day was Monday — a day set aside to recognize that some of our most important citizens are vulnerable to abuse, neglect and exploitation.

Elder abuse impacts not just seniors, but anyone over the age of 18 categorized as an endangered adult. An endangered adult is a person incapable by reason of mental illness, intellectual disability, dementia, habitual drunkenness, excessive drug use, or other physical or mental incapacity of managing or directing the management of the individual's property or providing self-care. The definition also includes a person harmed or threatened with harm due to neglect, battery or exploitation of the individual's personal services or property.

There are multiple crimes that are committed against endangered adults in Indiana. One such crime is battery. A battery occurs whenever a person knowingly or intentionally touches an endangered adult in a rude, insolent or angry manner. The crime increases in severity depending on the injury caused, if any. Another crime often committed against endangered adults is neglect. Neglect occurs when a caregiver for an endangered adult places the cared-for adult in a situation that threatens the adult's life or health by failing to provide adequate food, clothing, shelter or medical care.

One of the most common crimes committed against endangered adults is exploitation. Exploitation is committed by a person who knowingly or intentionally exerts unauthorized use of the personal services or the property of an endangered adult for the person's own profit or advantage. According to a 2011 study, older Americans lose a minimum of $2.9 billion annually due to elder financial abuse and exploitation.

There are several well-recognized risk factors for elder abuse by caregivers. The risk factors include: a current diagnosis of a mental health disorder; current abuse of alcohol; high levels of hostility; poor or inadequate preparations or training for care giving responsibilities; assumption of caregiving responsibility at an early age; inadequate coping skills; exposure to abuse as a child; high financial and emotional dependence upon a vulnerable elder; lack of social support; or lack of formal services such as respite care.

Elder abuse is most often perpetrated by the victim's own family members. Roughly 90% of abusers are family members, most often adult children or spouses. A 2010 study reported that approximately 11% of the elderly population in the United States had experienced abuse or neglect in the year prior. Despite this high percentage, we know that elder abuse is largely unreported. The National Center on Elder Abuse suggests that only one in 14 cases of abuse is actually reported to authorities.

All of this is made more important because elders who experience abuse, neglect, or self-neglect face considerably higher risk of premature death than elders who have not been mistreated. Older adults who are abused or mistreated are three times more likely to die within the next decade than the same age adults who are not mistreated.

As your prosecutor, I am working hard every day to protect these vulnerable members of our community. One resource we have in this effort is our Adult Protective Services Unit. In Indiana, prosecutors manage the APS system. My office is engaged daily in the investigation of elder abuse, and in efforts to protect endangered adults through law enforcement actions, court orders, and placement of endangered adults into safe care. We will continue these robust efforts.

As a community, I hope we will take the opportunity provided by this awareness day to be vigilant regarding the safety and well-being of elders and the endangered adults among us. If you suspect abuse, neglect or exploitation of an endangered adult, please report it to authorities. You may contact my office, or you can call the Indiana APS Hotline at (800) 992-6978. In an emergency, you should call 9-1-1.

Kelli Pennington

Caregiver charged with stealing $100K from elderly woman

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

A Madison woman has been arrested for allegedly stealing more than $100,000 from an elderly person for which she was serving as a caregiver.

Kelli Pennington, 41, of Madison, was arrested on June 11 by Detective Yancy Denning and Special Deputy Kevin Fry of the Jefferson County Sheriff's Office, on a warrant charging her with two counts of theft, and one count of corrupt business influence, all Level 5 felonies, and one count of attempted check fraud, a Level 6 felony.

According to the sheriff's office, Denning had been contacted by the Farmers Bank of Milton in late January with concerns that an elderly customer of the bank was being victimized by their caregiver. After conducting interviews and reviewing bank and credit card documentation, Denning determined that from June 2019 until January 2020 the victim had more than $100,000 taken from her bank and credit card accounts fraudulently. After a lengthy investigation into the allegations an arrest warrant was issued on June 11 and Pennington was taken into custody.

"We had to move our 5 boys today over to the main cemetery. Everyone helping was very kind and professional," she posted. "The new land owner, Calvin Daugherty, will help but this needs to be done now for those wanting to move their pets."

Keith Mefford, clerk-treasurer for the Town of Hanover and owner of the HFP Management construction company working on the site, said the property was once owned by Jim Holt and operated as a pet cemetery but became the subject of a sheriff's auction directly after his ownership. Daugherty declined to comment.

HFP Management owns Grandview and will relocate the pets to a special section of the cemetery, Mefford said.

Mefford said there's no hard deadline on when people must move their pets, but Daugherty "wants to do something pretty quick," as he plans to start construction soon. Monday was a "rough day" moving five dogs, he said, but no one else had called about moving their pets as of Tuesday night.

HFP acquired Grandview in 2005 and payed off the 39.6-acre tract last year, Mefford said. He hopes to eventually sell the cemetery to a nonprofit or committee.

patio. And down on the Ohio River the Lighthouse is also getting back in the swing.

I talked to Charlene Ballard at the Lighthouse and she said, "We're going to shoot for music every Saturday, like we did last year, and I'm going to try to book music for Bike Night on Wednesday's too." If you haven't been to the Lighthouse lately, it's quite nice, with an expanded bar area and more outdoor dining.

Another very exciting development is the emergence of an organization called the Madison Music Movement, led by local businessman Todd Boone. Says Todd, "We want to elevate our quality of life by expanding our local music culture. We're going to do that by establishing Madison as Indiana's Music City. The benefits to tourism, business growth and city prosperity will be immense."

To help jumpstart the live music scene, Madison Music Movement is producing a "Friday Live Lunch" concert series starting tomorrow. It will take place at noon in the alley between the Taproom and Bello's Pizza. Grab a sandwich or salad and stop by for a listen. And watch the music calendar for future lunch shows.

The Music Movement is also working closely with local designer and owner of Madison Made, Nick Meacham, to produce a really awesome new Indiana's Music City T-shirt. They are available right now at Madison Made, and part of the proceeds from each shirt sold goes to support Madison Music Movement.

TIP OF THE WEEK

I have to strongly recommend you check out Ritch Henderson at Red Bicycle Hall on Saturday, especially if you like the trad-country songwriter style that's so popular right now. Ritch plays solo, without a back up band, and the experience is intimate, engaging and emotional. He's a U.S. Marine veteran with a bunch of great stories to tell and a wonderful voice for telling them.

Charlie Rohlfing is a retired advertising man and partner in The Red Bicycle Hall music venue. Look for his distinctive fedora bobbing above the crowd anywhere live music is happening or reach him at crohlfing@madisoncourier.com.

FRIDAY, JUNE 19

Alley between Taproom and Bello's — Live Lunch Music at noon

SATURDAY, JUNE 20

THERE IS NOTHING SMALL ABOUT SKIN CANCER'S IMPACT

David Schumacher, MD
General Surgery / Bariatrics

Gilbert Field, DO
General Surgery/Wound Care

We can safely provide skin cancer evaluation and treatment.

While many skin cancers are small in size, there is nothing small about their impact. When left undiagnosed and untreated, skin cancers can be disfiguring and even lethal - especially melanoma. The good news: when detected early or as pre-cancerous lesions, most skin cancers can be cured and eliminated. If it has been a while since you had a skin cancer check-up, we can help. Our surgeons will identify concerns and arrange for prompt evaluation and follow-up. We can safely provide care. Call today.

Show interest during an interview

Dear Annie: I've been applying for jobs but having no luck. I did interview at two places this month. It did not work out at either. I'm wondering about one part of the interview. When they ask if I have any questions for them, what am I supposed to say? I really need work and, honestly, don't need to know anything except whether I have the job. I tend to blank out and say no, thanking them for their time. Any advice you can offer would be appreciated. — Striking Out

Dear Striking Out: You're interviewing them as much as they're interviewing you. You may not feel like it, especially in a tough economic climate. But act like it anyway. It will imbue you with a sense of confidence that is far more alluring to employers than an air of desperation.

Here are old standbys that are perfectly appropriate to ask: "Is there room for growth here?" "What do you feel is the most challenging part of this position?" "Are there opportunities for evaluation?"

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Then there are some that are less common but perhaps even more compelling, e.g., "Do you have any concerns about my qualifications?" or "Would you be able to share an example of someone who excelled in this role? Or an example of someone who wasn't a good fit and why?" Bring a notepad with keywords jotted down to jog your memory, and take notes on their responses. Employers want to know that you're interested. Most importantly, remember to breathe and smile. You've got this.

Dear Annie: We are spending the springtime at home with just a few others, not at all what we expected to be doing. Normally, there would be proms, sports, religious gatherings, graduations, weddings and so many other events with family and friends. The Key Idea, a community arts organization is collecting postcard stories about quarantine experiences. There are some challenges, but lots of wonderful things are happening as well.

People of all ages are invited to be a part of this community art project by documenting firsthand experiences during this historic time.

What is your quarantine experience and how are you coping? Send us the good, the bad, the sad, the funny and the ironic. You can make a postcard on paper or digitally. Share your ideas and strategies for coping and have your postcard featured on our site.

Mail cards to: The Keys to Coping, PO Box 304, West Hyannisport, MA 02672. Or email them to thekeyidea@gmail.com. Find out more on thekeyidea.org. — Lenore Lyons, founder, The Key Idea

Dear Ms. Lyons: What a fun idea, and it's important to document this time in history for future generations to look back on. I'm happy to print the address here and encourage readers to share their stories.

Running for cover from sneezes

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: Recently, you printed a letter from a woman whose boyfriend excessively belched. Well, now I am here to complain about my wife's sneezes.

When she sneezes, it is practically a scream. I think it gives me ear damage. It definitely gives me a start, not to mention our poor cat, who takes off running for cover every time. This is worse in the spring, with the allergies.

I have heard that it is unhealthy to hold in sneezes, but the volume, at least, would seem controllable to me. Can't she dial it down? — Alarmed by the Achoos

Dear Alarmed: In theory, yes, she probably could; in reality, it would be pretty difficult to pull off. We're capable of controlling the volume of our sneezes to a degree (by closing our mouths, for one). But it's a complex reflex. Otolaryngologists have found that your sneeze is as unique to you as your laugh, and most of us develop a signature sneeze from a young age.

So try to cut your wife some slack. Encourage her to talk to her doctor about over-the-counter and prescription allergy medication options. She should also undergo an allergy test, if she hasn't already, to identify any hidden irritants lurking in your home. (Hopefully, the cat isn't one of them — but if so, there are treatments that can help.) And kindly ask her to give you a heads-up, when possible, if she feels a sneeze coming on. That will reduce the shock factor, if not the ear damage.

Dear Annie: I have two books to recommend to anyone married to someone with Asperger's syndrome (now called high-functioning autism). But first, I'd like to offer some background on what it's like to be a neurotypical spouse of someone with this form of autism. Many people with high-functioning autism do not see any other point of view but their own. In our marriage, that means my spouse thinks if I do something different from his way, I am wrong.

People with Asperger's often have a very delicate sensory system. Each person with autism works hard to survive every day in our noisy, crowded, visually stimulating world. Some have such sensitive skin that a delicate touch or hug feels painful.

However, there are many positives to being married to someone with this disorder. There are many characteristics associated with autism that are also characteristics of a good spouse: honesty, loyalty and an ethical worldview.

The two books that helped me very much are "Asperger Syndrome and Long-Term Relationships" by Ashley Stanford and "Life With a Partner or Spouse with Asperger Syndrome" by Kathy J. Marshack Ph.D. — Supportive Spouse

Dear Supportive: Thank you so much for opening up about your personal experience and sharing these resources to help other couples.
